

Saudi Arabia joins The Hague System

On April 07, 2025, Saudi Arabia's accession as a Contracting Party to the 1999 Geneva Act of the Hague Agreement entered into force, facilitating the international protection of industrial designs in this country.

WHAT DOES THIS ACCESSION ENTAIL?

- 1 Interested parties will have the possibility to designate Saudi Arabia in an international design application, thus facilitating the expansion of their business in The Middle East.
- 2 With Saudi Arabia, the 1999 Geneva Act now has 76 contracting parties, expanding the international protection options for designers and companies.

This accession strengthens the scope of the global system and benefits those seeking to protect their innovations in the Middle East.
